RICHESON'S PLEA FROM CEL

"I Am Innocent," Says Richeson, Resigning From Pulpi
"God in His Own Good Time Will Lift This Burden From Me

Copyright, 1911, by Boston American.

CHARLES F. CUMMINGS, Clerk Immanuel Baptist Church, 15 Marlboro Street, Belmont, Mass.:

MY Dear Sir—I beg to herewith tender my resignation as pastor of Immanuel Church.

Strong in the consciousness of my innocence and firmly persuaded that God in His own good time will lift this burden from me, I nevertheless feel that I should permit the shadow thrown across my life to darken the religious welfare of my church and of its people, whom I love.

I, therefore, deem it my duty to place the church in a position to select my successor.

With my heartfelt thanks for the many kindnesses shown me by each and all of the members of my church, I am sincerely yours.

PELLETIER IS AFTER TRUSTS

District Attorney Pelletier to-day began a legal investigation into the charges of Governor Foss that officials of the Republican State Committee and several big corporations had flagrantly violated the Corrupt Practices law of this State.

Governor Foss to-day, on the eve of his departure for the rally at Whitman, said in regard to the reverse offered by Chairman Hatfield of the Republican State Committee in sending a request for a contribution to the Boston Blower Company:

"A blunder? Then the Governor added. "That's a fine excuse, isn't it?

"An Error, Eh?" Says Foss.

"I wonder if Charlie (referring to Chairman Hatfield) thinks that the people can be fooled by such a weak explanation.

"An error in the card index, eh?

"I suppose it wants the card index indicted.

"If it was an unintentional error, as Mr. Hatfield would have the people believe, it is a strange thing and a significant fact that this error should not have been discovered some time ago, considering that the law which the action of the Republican State Committee violated in sending the letter has been on the statute books of the Commonwealth for the last four years.

"These letters requesting contributions have been sent to the Boston Blower Company every year since the law was passed. In view of these facts, it seems to me that the people can hardly accept the excuse given by Mr. Hatfield."

Treasurer Clifford Gallagher of the Republican State Committee and Treasurer Charles H. Bolton of the Democratic State Committee went to the office of District Attorney Pelletier to-day with their books of record showing financial contributions received for the present campaign. They were received with the District Attorney for some time. Their presence was in response to a request by Mr. Pelletier, somewhat in a command, that they submit to him all books or other records showing the sources from which they had obtained campaign funds, and also to show what means were taken to ask for such contributions.

Politicians Are Called

It was 10:30 o'clock when H. Clifford Gallagher, treasurer of the Republican State Committee; Senator John A. Curtin and Executive Secretary Charles S. Groves of the same organization appeared at the courthouse in response to the request for their presence sent by District Attorney Pelletier. Chairman Hatfield of the committee was not with them, and the famous card index on which Mr. Hatfield law all the blame for the committee's violation of the law, was not in sight either.

Members of the delegation said they did not know whether or not the District Attorney had ordered Mr. Hatfield to appear. District Attorney Pelletier was busy until the Republican delegation had to wait for several minutes. They announced their presence to Messenger Wolf and informed him that Mr. Pelletier wished to see Hatfield from the Republican office of the District Attorney with the information that Mr. Pelletier would see them in a short time and requested them to sit down and wait.

Groves as Spokesman.

Secretary Groves, as spokesman for the committee officials, said that their purpose was to see the District Attorney at the request of that official.

SHOE MEN AT RALLIES FOR FOSS

Four thousand shoe workers in Whitman cheered Governor Foss and his rallies to-day when he attacked the record of Senator Lodge on the tariff on boots and shoes. The Governor charged that Lodge was willing to barter the interests of the shoe manufacturers for those of the textile interests. He read Lodge's record on the boot and shoe schedules in the Payne-Aldrich bill from the Congressional Record of June 15, 1909, saying:

"Senator Lodge in a speech on the floor of the Senate on that day said:

"'Mr. President, I will agree to put boots and shoes and sole leather on the free list if the Senate will vote to put paper on the free list, because wood pulp and pulp wood and logs, which are its raw materials, are there.'

"The Governor's first speech was before 1,500 employes of the Commonwealth Shoe Company. He went from there to the Regal and to the Gurney factories, where over 1,000 workmen greeted and cheered him at each place.

Alfred E. Green of Duxbury, candidate for Councillor of the Plymouth district, spoke with the Governor.

James A. Watson of Boston opened the rally at the Regal shoe plant and attacked Robert Luce's record on various public matters. He showed six photographs of bills Lieutenant Governor Frothingham had put in while in the Park Department and walks still a member of the Legislature.

Calls for Honest Revision.

"An honest revision of the tariff, a revision downward that the Republican party promised but promptly forgot," the Governor declared to the assembled shoe workers, "will not affect your wages at all. The jealous schedule we want revised, just as we do the wool and cotton schedules, out of such revisions you'll get the same wages, and no place work care of an income because there'll be more work. Machinery now idle will more. Don't be afraid of the lurid advertisements of the courteous forms of intimidation that these high protected trusts p... up to you."

Crowds Greet Governor.

Before audiences which packed halls in Fitchburg and Clinton last night, Governor Foss and David I. Walsh, his running mate on the Democratic ticket, denounced Senator Lodge's standpat machine and showed that Louis A. Frothingham, his candidate for Governor, had been elected only because of his unqualified fidelity to it, and those who operate it.

It was a great time for the Democrats. David I. Walsh, the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, was given a royal welcome home—two of them, in fact, for the citizens of Clinton, his birthplace, as well as those of Fitchburg, where he himself lives, turned out in thousands to cheer for him.

Governor Foss was warmly received and his denunciation of the Republican position on all matters of legislation or policy that affect the people was cheered to the echo.

Governor Foss devoted much of his speeches to the high cost of living and the hardships deprivation that has followed the enactment of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law. He declared that tariffs would be no better and that act was repealed and new schedules enacted. Its retention on the statute books of the nation, he said, would result in the absolute destruction of business, while the purchasing power of the dollar would steadily become less.

This was inevitable, he explained, since manufacturing was burdened by it with such restrictions that the cost of produc-

POPE THANKED BY SYRIANS

Mgr. Nicola Gamaun, rector of the Church of the Annunciation (Syrian) on Harrison avenue, the Rev. Fr. Ateenson and the parishioners of the church sent a cable message to-day to Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State, expressing their gratification to the Pope for naming Archbishop O'Connell as one of the three new American Cardinals.

The new Syrian church was established through the aid of Archbishop O'Connell, who was in full sympathy with the desire of Mgr. Gamaun to have a house of worship for his Syrian flock. The church was dedicated by the archbishop.

LINERS HELD BACK BY GALE

Incoming vessels to-day reported a terrific sea and rough experience in the bay. The northwesterly gale has delayed incoming liners from two to three days. The Buffalo from Hull, Iberian from Manchester and Lancastrian from London are three days overdue. The British schooners Grace Darling from Windsor, N. S., and the Evolution from Chemesconport, N. S., were in the bay when the fifty-mile-an-hour gale struck them, and all night they kept steerage way with almost bare poles. The fact that both were loaded with lumber probably prevented disaster.

HOLD WIFE OF 15 AS SHOPLIFTER

Mrs. Kate Genazo of Fleet street, fifteen years old, married, and the mother of two children, was arraigned in the Juvenile Court to-day on the charge of shoplifting. She is the first mother to be arraigned in that court.

Mrs. Genazo was arrested on last Tuesday by Inspectors Knox and Abbott. With her was arrested Mrs. Carmella Scaglia, forty years old, who lived on Prince street. Bail was furnished for Mrs. Scaglia by Orin Orkon of No. 14 Lewis street. Everett, but the older woman did not answer to her name in the Municipal Court and her bail was declared forfeited.

Young Mrs. Genazo was found guilty and her case was continued for sentence.

PASTOR PRAYS TO BE CLEARED

The remarkable letter written in his cell by the Rev. C... V. T. Richeson, in which he tendered his resignation as pa... the Cambridge Immanuel Baptist Church, made public exclusive... to-day in the AMERICAN, caused many of the members of ... congregation to express their conviction that the accused clergyman ... innocent of the murder of Avis Linnell, for which he has been indicted.

The emphatic and solemn declaration of innocence by the imprisoned pastor had a convincing effect on many of his old friends who had begun to waver in their allegiance because of his long silence. In his latter the Rev. Mr. Richeson made these assertions:

CERTAIN "BURDEN WILL BE LIFTED."

"I am strong in the consciousness of my innocence."

"I am firmly persuaded that God in His own good time will lift this burden from me."

"I shall not permit the shadow thrown across my life to darken the religious welfare of my church.

"I love the people of my church."

Said one of Richeson's friends in Cambridge to-day:

"There's something mysterious in this case. Pastor Richeson can't be guilty. He could not have written that letter if he were guilty. He and his lawyers have some surprises for the people. I have faith in Pastor Richeson."

Members of Richeson's own church did not learn the contents of his letter of resignation until they had read it in to-day's AMERICAN.

Lawyer Philip R. Dunbar, of counsel for Richeson, when shown a copy of the AMERICAN containing the letter of Richeson at his office, No. 84 State street, this afternoon, said:

"Well, I certainly admire the enterprise of the AMERICAN. I have to read it to find out what is going on in this case myself. I would like to make you a statement now, but we have decided not to discuss the case in the newspapers."

Advised to Remain Silent

Avis Linnell was murdered three weeks ago to-morrow evening. Richeson was suspected within a few days and was arrested two weeks ago. He has maintained a remarkable silence since that time. Even his staunchest friends could not understand why in the face of the almost incredible things that were said against him, he did not speak. It appears now that he acted, for the most part, under the advice of counsel.

The long silence of the indicted pastor is broken in a letter of resignation to the Immanuel Baptist Church of Cambridge. It was written yesterday by the clergyman himself in his prison cell and forwarded to Charles F. Cummings, clerk of the church.

The letter is short, but a marvel of strong, eloquent, convincing construction. It is intensely religious in spirit—strongly reminiscent of the protests that came from the lips of martyrs persecuted in the early eras of Christianity.

This is the letter—one of the most remarkable features of this remarkable murder case:

Letter of Resignation

Charles Street Jail,
Nov. 2, 1911.

Charles F. Cummings, Clerk Immanuel Baptist Church, No. 15 Marlboro street, Belmont, Mass.:

My Dear Sir—I beg to herewith tender my resignation as pastor of Immanuel Church.

No crime ever committed in New England has created more discussion and more intense feeling. Men and women have discussed it pro and con. Many have made up their minds as to the innocence or guilt of the handsome, young, brilliant clergyman.

The police, sensing the force of public opinion, gained a strong point when they flashed through the country the news that Richeson bought enough cyanide of potassium on October 10 to kill ten men.

The public, educated in following the development of criminal cases, made remarks something like these:

"That looks bad for Richeson."

"Why did he buy cyanide of potassium?"

"He did not have a dog that he wanted to kill."

"Why doesn't he say something."

But in the face of all this Richeson never quailed. He is a Virginian of undoubted courage and descended from a stock that were familiar with peril and even sudden death. He comes from the mountains where a man can not grow up and fear death.

Another characteristic of those men is their silence under accusation—a certain form of manliness that glues their lips together. Friends of Richeson who wondered what he would say when he did speak recalled the characteristics enumerated.

Denial, No Explanation.

And now he has spoken. The statement is characteristic there is no explanation to the public—there is a flat denial of guilt and an appeal to the Good Being in a manner that is perfectly in keeping with the profession of the man accused.

Could a guilty man write such a letter? That is one of the questions that will be asked all over New England when the letter is read to-day. And this answer is gladly sure to come back:

"If Richeson is guilty of the atrocious

FIGHT TO KEEP FLAG ON SEAS

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—There was born at the Waldorf-Astoria a new organization dedicated to the revival of the American merchant marine, the National Merchant Marine Association. The meeting was attended by representatives of the largest manufacturing and shipping interests in the country.

It was announced that the old Merchant Marine League, which for years has been making sporadic efforts to restore the flag to the commerce of the seas, will join the new organization in the propaganda for recognition by Congress of the demands of the manufacturing, shipping and agricultural interests of the country for the revival of the merchant marine.

John H. Hanna, president of the National Boot and Shoe Association, was elected president, subject to the ratification of the board of directors after the organization has been regularly chartered by the State of New York. C. D. Durkee was elected treasurer, with A. T. Ewell as secretary. A provisional board was elected as follows: Charles F. Wiebusch, John K. Fisher, J. A. Coffin, George W. Gilling, George R. Burrows, Henry C. Lenderbough, Andrew J. Mcintosh, Frederick A. Worthen, E. B. Bennett, C. D. Durkee and J. L. Ewell.

HOLD-UP MAN HELD UP BY A JEWELER

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—A young man entered the jewelry shop of Dudley Sigmund in Jersey City and asked to see some diamond rings. Sigmund drew out a tray and stooped for another. As he straightened up he found himself gazing into the barrel of a revolver. "Put up your hands," commanded the young man. Sigmund complied with even revolver, threating it into the face of the youth. "Drop that gun and put up your own hands," he said. The youth complied, but the bullet, missing the jeweller by a hair, lodged in the wall behind him. Sigmund's bullet sped through the hat of the man in front of him. So near had his gun been held that the powder filled the man's eyes and he dropped his own revolver, clapping him hands to his eyes with a cry of pain. He was arrested.

'BEST PUBLICITY IN NEWSPAPERS'

"Advertising should, in my opinion, be done entirely through the great national medium of the newspapers and periodicals, which are seen only by those who buy and wish to read them," Nathaniel B. Fowler, Jr., told the members of the Union Together Club of the Jordan Marsh Company at its dinner at the American House.

"From my twenty-five years' of experience in the advertising business, I can positively say that 95 per cent. of the best advertising in this country use only this medium."

W. A. Hooper, president of the Get Together Club, presided, and the entertainment, which has hitherto been of a purely social nature, was made a permanent organization. The following officers were elected: W. A. Hooper, president; W. L. Bailey, treasurer; Otis O'Leary, secretary.

Among the prominent members of the club present were Richard Mitton, Fred W. Coombs, John J. Lamb and Robert L. Waters, merchandise managers of the Jordan Marsh Company; W. A. Hawkins, superintendent of the store; George S. Richards, advertising manager, and Maurice Wrigley, treasurer of the company.

YOUNG ERNE WINS FROM KID BROAD

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—Young Erne added one more victory to his long list of victories at the Broadway A. C. by beating Kid Broad, who has been fighting in the West for some time. All through the bout Broad swung his mighty left, but would have been fatal to Erne if it had connected. In the eighth it brought Erne on the right arm and there could do the Grays Ferry boy little harm.

REVERE BOY BADLY INJURED BY WAGON

VICTORY SEEN BY WATERMAN

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 3.—Lewis A. Waterman, Democratic candidate for Governor, who has been making a vigorous campaign against the Republican machine, is confident of victory as the campaign draws to a close. He said today:

"I will be elected. In going about the State I find that the people are beginning to take a deeper interest in political affairs. All of the Democratic rallies are largely attended and the crowds are unusually enthusiastic. The record made in the rain in East Greenwich until late in the evening listening to Democratic speeches. This is only one instance of the interest that is being taken in the Democratic campaign. I look for increases in the Democratic Assembly representation. We will hold the ground we won last year and win additional districts. My observation is that the State will go Democratic."

Judge Frank E. Fitz Simmons, the Democratic chairman, said: "We hope for a victory, and look for the election of Mr. Waterman for Governor by a good-sized plurality."

Chairman Farley of the Democratic City Committee claims the election of Alderman Joseph H. Gainer as Mayor, and of additional Democratic Assemblymen.

Governor Pothier, who is seeking a fourth term insists the State will go Republican.

A New Remedy for Skin Troubles.

Many skin troubles are not caused by the blood as most people think. External treatment is therefore the most direct and rational way to effect a cure. A chemist who was convinced of this fact found that an extract of the plant Juniperus Sabina was the most soothing and healing to an irritated, inflamed or diseased skin. By this rational method of treatment this vegetable extract is now combined with other antiseptic, healing ingredients, and is known as Cadum. This new compound has cured thousands of cases of eczema and other distressing skin diseases after other remedies had failed. It stops the terrible itching of eczema at once, and begins healing with the first application. Cadum can be used with confidence in all skin affections of infants and adults. It has proved a blessing to many who have suffered for years from tormenting and disfiguring skin diseases. Cadum is different from anything else. It acts quickly upon pimples, sores, ulcers, eruptions, rashes, rough skin, blotches, chafings, scalp sores, itching piles, etc. Sold by all druggists at 10c. & 25c. per box.

CHEMISTS SOLVING POISON PUZZLE

Report on Vermilya Mystery to Be Returned to Chicago Coroner.

Mrs. Louisa Vermilya of Chicago, who is said to have profited by mysterious deaths of several persons.

Jealousy Added as Motive in Last of Long Series of Mysterious Deaths.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—The police believe that jealousy may have been the motive that led to the killing of Arthur Bissonette, one of the nine deaths with which Mrs. Louise Vermilya is charged. The filing of Bissonette's will, showed Miss Lydia Pi-ward, a daughter of a farmer of Marshall, Minn., as his fiancee and the chief beneficiary, under the document. Although Mrs. Vermilya's name appeared on the will as a witness she denied that she knew anything of it.

Report is Ready.

That action will be taken against Mrs. Vermilya as to a further investigation into eight other deaths that have occurred in her circle of immediate associates will be determined to-day. Toxicologists, who are examining Bissonette's viscera, will make a report.

Dr. E. R. LeCount, who, with Professor Walter S. Haines has been making an analysis of the viscera of Bissonette, is ready to report. Regarding the nature of this report, neither Dr. LeCount nor Professor Haines would make any statement, but a significant light was thrown upon the subject by Detective George T. Schriver, attached to Coroner Hoffman's office.

"I saw Dr. LeCount and he will present his report to Coroner Hoffman to-day," said Detective Schriver.

"Did he tell you his finding?" he was asked.

"I cannot discuss that," replied Schriver.

"What do you personally think of it?" was the next question.

"I think this is one of the worst murder mysteries ever uncovered in Chicago," was his reply.

A prominent physician called in connection with Bissonette's death, and who has been in close touch with Dr. LeCount during the progress of analysis, was asked as to the nature of the report Dr. LeCount would present. He said that he could only imagine what this report would be.

Guard Mrs. Vermilya.

Police guards continued to-day their surveillance over Mrs. Vermilya. Her sister, Mrs. Buckholz, told Captain Harding she feared Mrs. Vermilya would attempt her own life.

C. C. Boysen, the undertaker, who appears to have been very well acquainted with Mrs. Vermilya, remained out of sight to-day, and one of his assistants declared he would continue out of sight until "he knows where he stands."

E. A. LaRoche, Bissonette's stepuncle, told of a quarrel he and Mrs. LaRoche had with Mrs. Vermilya and Boysen a few months after Bissonette died.

"This man Boysen came to the hospital less than ten minutes after Arthur was dead," said Mr. LaRoche. "I understand Mrs. Vermilya telephoned to him. He insisted on taking charge of the body and I objected. Then Mrs. Vermilya insisted Boysen be permitted to take the body, and he loudly demanded it. But he did not get it. I do not know why she should have been so anxious to secure possession of the body."

Fascinated By Death.

A story that Mrs. Vermilya was morbidly fascinated by death was told by E. M. Blocks, undertaker at Barrington, Ill.

"She actually seemed to enjoy working around bodies," he said, "and while I never suspected her, for a couple of years I couldn't keep her out of the office.

"At every death she would seem to hear of it just as soon as I, and she would reach the house only a little behind me. She seemed to glory in thinking of death."

Mrs. A. E. Laroque, aunt of Bissonette, declared to-day she had almost to resort to personal violence to get possession of her nephew's body, owing to Mrs. Vermilya's demands that she should attend to his burial.

A significant feature concerning the analysis is the fact that more than a week has been consumed in making the examination of the viscera of the dead policeman.

It is understood that, if the discoloration of the liver of the dead man had been caused by some organic trouble, it would have been quickly determined.

Instead, the lengthy time consumed, according to physicians, is a plain indication that some foreign matter has been found and that repeated and varied tests have been made to absolutely determine its nature.

The World Famous Nemo TRIPLE STRIP Corsets

Flexibility is the keynote in the corset world to-day. Without flexibility very long corsets are next to unwearable.

The new Nemo fabric, Lastikops Webbing, provides a degree of flexibility heretofore impossible.

This semi-elastic fabric is a Nemo invention used only in Nemo Corsets. It is the only elastic in existence that can be guaranteed to wear long and retain all its origiual elasticity.

Nemo No. 505 is shown in the upper illustration. It was designed originally for slender and medium figures, but has proved to be just the thing for large women who are not fat. The 14-inch skirt clings closely to the figure; but those elastic bands provide ample room when you sit down, and the corset will not "ride up." Bust is medium-low. Sizes 20 to 30.

For Stout Figures

Nemo Self-Reducing Corsets are the recognized world's standard for stout women, and the later models are made more effective and comfortable than ever by the use of Lastikops Webbing. The greatest of all reducing corsets for heavy figures is

GEORGES

Phenomenal Clothes Values Result of Peculiar Conditions

SOME few months ago, when we announced that we would have to vacate our old Summer Street store, and offered our then remaining stock at a great sacrifice, Boston men hurried to buy what they rightly judged as the greatest clothes bargains ever offered in Boston.

Up to that time they were. But now it's different. For considering the time of the season, this vast and brilliant stock of beautiful new Fall and Winter Clothes now assembled here represents at present, prices even greater values than those. 'Tis the result of unusual conditions.

Fully expecting to be in this new store two months ago, or at least of remaining at our old Summer Street store until this store was completed, we prepared the largest stock in our history of the cleverest English and American Sack, Walking, Prince Albert, Dress and Tuxedo Suits, medium and heavy weight Overcoats, Raincoats, etc., etc. But we were forced by a series of delays to occupy an out-of-the-way temporary location for the past month, at a serious loss of Fall business.

We have, therefore, two conditions to overcome, an overplus of stock, and a deficiency in business. That is why we have priced this entire wonderful stock of beautiful Fall and Winter Clothes at far less than they should bring. The values are astounding, less than readymade prices for GEORGES Famous MODEL CLOTHES, a full year ahead of readymades in style. Think of it.

Out of More Than 15,000 Garments We Mention Five as Representative

GEORGES FALL OVERCOAT 12.50

model, made in various shades of gray and black, in velours, and unfinished worsted. Plain or silk-faced. Sizes to fit men of all proportions. The equal of any Twenty-Dollar Made-to-Order. Either straight back or boxy effect. Various lengths.

GEORGES CONSERVATIVE SUIT 15.00

model is designed on lines distinct from Ready-mades. Either brond or medium shoulder effect. It's built for the business man or athletic chap that doesn't care for the English construction of clothes. These models are made in various shades of gray, blues and browns, in neat check, pin-stripes and invisible overplaid effects. It's $25 service at.

GEORGES ENGLISH SUIT 16.50

model is renowned in all cities where we are located. The shoulders are narrow and sloping, lapel either peak or round corner effect. Long soft roll, slightly form-fitting, vest cut high, the latest colorings now in vogue with the good dressers are Blue-Grays, Royal Purple and Chestnut Brown. See those specially priced at.

GEORGES ENGLISH RAGLAN 18.00

model is made up in English whip-cords, genuine Irish homespuns, Scotch tweeds and fuzzy imported velours in every imaginable shade. It's so different from the ordinary factory built that they will make a hit with you at once. The collar is arranged to hug the neck, while the skirt has the extreme bell effect. You'll have trouble in duplicating them at double our marked price.

GEORGES GREAT COAT 20.00

model, an improvement over the old style Ulster. The collar is convertible, it's a dress and storm coat combined. Plain grays seem to have the call, but we've made them up in various color effects, either belted or box back. This model was specially designed for us by one of New York's fashion creators, and we feel assured will meet the approval of Boston's best dressers. Quite an assortment at.

This is to express our Thanks to the men of Boston for yesterday The biggest day in the history of Georges in any city

Today will be another record breaker. Extra Salesmen The $10 man as welcome as the man who spends $50

A Brief Story of GEORGES Growth in BOSTON

IT reads like a Fairy tale. We first opened a store in Boston on April 9th, 1908, at 14 Summer Street. Boston men accepted and supported GEORGES Famous CUSTOM MODEL CLOTHES from the very start. It was only a scant two years when we found it necessary to annex the adjoining building at 16 Summer Street, until we came to do the greatest volume of clothing business in Boston. Now, we are entering upon another and the biggest step in our marvelous successful progress, opening the largest individual clothing store in Boston at 384 Washington St.

We might add that one of the great foundation stones in the structure of our success is our open and above-board window policy. We never have "dummies" in our windows. Our display garments are from our regular stock, and will gladly be taken out of the window for the asking.

With this Opening We Inaugurate a Youths' Dept.

Embracing clothes especially designed for young men in those ages when they give more attention to clothes and appearance than seems necessary. Nobby, smart, snappy styles, fabrics and colors. Sizes range all the way from the entrance to the long trouser stage up to the Prep. School Athlete measuring 38 around the chest.

On Auto, Fur and Fur-Lined Coats We Can Positively Save You 50%

We especially call your attention to one of our representative values, a natural Muskrat lined, full skins, with either Persian Lamb or Rat collar and choice of Venetian or Broadcloth shell—a coat that everywhere else is only duplicated at $75 or more. Our price. $45

Fancy Vests

For the opening, we shall sell 3000 Fancy Vests, values ranging $3, $4, $5 and $6, in the biggest assortment in Boston, every size included, at

REFUSE MORGAN HARVARD TICKET

J. Pierpont Morgan, who gave $1,185,000 toward Harvard's magnificent marble medical school and who is an honorary graduate of Harvard University through the degree of A. M. conferred on him in 1910, is so far unable to secure two tickets for the Harvard-Yale football game, presumably because he failed to agree to a technical requirement in making out his application.

The application went to the waste basket of the Harvard Athletic Association, and Mr. Morgan's check for $4 was returned to his Wall street office.

William F. Garcelon, graduate manager of Harvard athletics, said to-day:

"I do not care to discuss the matter in detail, but I will say that applications for tickets, when the applicant agrees to use them for himself alone, are honored so far as possible.

No Speculation Permitted.

Mr. Morgan had stated in his letter of application that he probably would be unable to use either of the tickets personally. The inference from Mr. Garcelon's statement is that J. Pierpont Morgan cannot get tickets to the big games any more than the most inconspicuous graduate can, unless he agrees to use them for himself.

This rule as to personal use is one of the many ways that the Harvard Athletic Association tries to protect itself and its members from speculators who try to buy tickets in blocks and sell them for fancy figures.

It is not assumed that Mr. Morgan desires to eke out his generous income by a little side "flyer" in Harvard-Yale football tickets. But the eminent donor of $1,185,000 to Harvard is a victim of that rule just the same.

It must strike Mr. Morgan as ironical that he cannot buy two tickets to the game, considering that he is the man to whom Harvard chiefly owes its medical school.

Stands Well with King.

It will be remembered that when the most distinguished people in all England were scrambling for invitations to the coronation of King George, J. Pierpont Morgan, American, secured one without apparent difficulty. Mr. Morgan's success as a "getter" was commented upon at that time.

The Emperor of Germany conferred on Professor Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard the Order of the Eagle of the second class, while he has previously bestowed a first-class eagle on Mr. Morgan. The way that Mr. Morgan took first-class eagles was remarked in that connection.

But getting football tickets is different. Mr. Morgan is temporarily up against a very stiff market. But he will get two tickets, however, or as many more as he wishes, is not doubted on a moment.

It is allowed that maybe his friend, Professor A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard, may "fix it" for him.

WATCHMAN KILLED BY TRAIN AT WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Nov. 3.—An unknown man, believed to have been a new watchman in the New York, New Haven & Hartford freight yard, was struck and instantly killed by a train about 200 yards south of the Old South Worcester station. Engineer A. D. Morse said he saw the man standing in the middle of the track with his back toward the approaching locomotive just before he was struck.

PROFESSIONAL PARENTS NOW

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The Rev. Zed H. Copp, who was formerly chief probation officer of the Juvenile Court, has set up in business here as a professional parent. Asked to tell something about the duties of a professional parent, he said:

"I have opened an office from which I shall treat children who give their parents trouble, just as a physician treats his patients. I shall treat both boys and girls at the office when accompanied by a parent, or I will call at the home under like conditions.

"I shall apply a system worked out during my long years as probation officer, the rudiments of which accomplished wonders with thousands of children, even hampered as I was in its application. I believe that I am free to apply a perfected system to dealing with boys whose parents may need my help. I am sure the case of 'bad boy' need fail if they faithfully follow my directions. I shall like another any boy whose case needs that form of treatment.

"The result of my work will be love and respect for parents, appreciation of home, desire to study, manliness and correct habits."

RODGERS NEAR PACIFIC COAST

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3.—Calbraith P. Rodgers, the coast-to-coast aviator, who left Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., September 17, as one of the contestants for the $50,000 prize, is now within striking distance of Los Angeles, and is expected to arrive in this city to-morrow.

Rodgers left Phoenix at 3.15 o'clock in the afternoon, flying southward, with the intention of striking the Southern Pacific tracks and flying west to Yuma, but ran out of gasoline and was forced to descend in the Arizona desert at Stovall, a little station seventy miles east of Yuma, at 6.20 o'clock, where he remained for the night. His flights for the day covered 174 miles.

Rodgers in High Spirits.

Rodgers when at Stovall had 246 miles to cover before reaching this city. He had already covered approximately 2,611 miles in estimated flying time of 4,551 minutes. He is in high spirits and is enthusiastic about his trip as the day he started.

He will finish his trip at Pasadena, after first alighting at Los Angeles.

Looking back over his trip and glancing at his machine as it stood on the sand stretch of sand near the Southern Pacific Railroad tracks, at Stovall, he said: "I am marked that with the exception of the engine, the rudder and the elevating planes, his biplane has been entirely rebuilt since he soared away from Sheepshead Bay, cheerer by thousands who wished him to be the winner of the race.

A Flight of Many Troubles.

His first trouble came when he got off his course at the start and lost about twenty miles. The second day out he wrecked his machine, and this necessitated a delay. Again, at Salamanca, N. Y., he met with an accident, and after various troubles and much delay he reached Ohio. From there he flew into Illinois, took several days crossing there, and then headed for Chicago.

He lost little time there, but moved westward and when he reached St. Louis he thrilled the city with flying tricks they had never seen before. Since that time he has been flying steadily, with no serious mishaps until he reached El Paso, October 29, where he broke the skids to his machine, making a bad landing.

He hopes to cross the remaining stretch of country at a good speed, satisfied before on a cross country flight.

JUNIORS WIN AT WELLESLEY

Juniors at Wellesley College won first places in five of the sports in the preliminaries at the annual field day class championships. The juniors won first in archery, golf, tennis, basketball and field hockey. The sophomores won first in running.

The opening event was archery, both freshmaries and finals being played, giving the juniors a good lead toward the ungraduate championship in outdoor athletics. The junior team, comprising Helen Hutchinson, Mildred Knowlton and Elizabeth Kipp, easily defeated the sophomores, Anna Balabanoff, Helen Davis, Frances Eagles and Adelaide Mergle. The seniors then defeated the sophomore team, Frances Bogart, Stella Metzger, Lillian Douglass and Phyllis Lean.

In golf the juniors defeated the sophomore girls in each match. The junior basketball team defeated the sophomore girls, 45 to 10. The winning team comprised Mary Humphrey, centre; Marjorie Cowee and Josephine Gulon, forwards; Alice Ross and Helen Brant, guards; the sophomores, Ethel Robinson, centre; Kathryn Schmidt and Elizabeth McConaughy, forwards; Emily Merriam and Mabel Patterson, guards.

The juniors then shut out the sophomores in field hockey, the score being 2 to 0. NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Objection to being continually referred to by his wife as "The Million Dollar Kid" was registered to-day by George H. The wife is suing Mudge's father for $50,000 for alleged alienation of his son's affections.

CURLEY DIRECTS TAMMANY BALL

This is the "morning after the night before" in Ward 17, and all over the district they are talking of last night's ball of the Tammany Club as the greatest function ever held in the ward.

There were fully 1,500 people in Intercolonial Hall on Dudley street when Congressman James M. Curley, who also is City Councilman James M. Curley, as floor marshal, gave the order for the grand march to start. This was at 9:30. It was not until an early hour today that the dancing ended.

Before the march there was an informal reception at which State and city officials and politicians from all parts of the city were greeted by a committee headed by Congressman James M. Curley and William A. Cressey. While the reception was on there was an orchestral concert of popular numbers. When "Tammany" was played by the orchestra the gathering lolsed in the chorus. The hall was decorated with red, white and blue hunting and potted plants, the orchestra being hidden behind a bower of ferns.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, Congressman William F. Murray, Ex-Representative Thomas P. Riley of Malden, Ex-Senator David R. Shaw of Charlestown and Hon. John F. Cronin arrived at the hall just before midnight and were given an enthusiastic reception. They had been speaking at Democratic rallies.

The grand march was led by President William P. O'Brien and his daughter, Miss Mary O'Brien, followed by ex-Judge Henry S. Dewey and Miss Mary Kelley; ex-Mayor John Hurley of Salem and Mrs. John Berry, Adjutant General Gardner, W. Pearson and Miss M. Farmer, General Stewart, W. Wise and Miss Margaret Flynn, Majors Henry S. Dewey and Miss Mary Otis, Representative Francis J. Brennan and Mrs. Brennan, Representative and Mrs. John D. Conners, Vice-President Lawrence Cunningham and Miss Mary Cunningham, ex-Representative and Mrs. Jeremiah J. Good, John Cullen and Miss Mary Cullen, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hope, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Connolly, Thomas Ferrel and Miss Mary Delaney, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick L. Conner and about fifty other couples.

Owing to a severe illness Mrs. Curley, wife of the Congressman, was unable to be present, it being the first ball to five years that she has not participated in as leader of the grand march.

A substantial amount was realized and it will be used by the club in providing Christmas dinners and coal for the Winter was chief of slds.

NOT FOR BROOKLINE.

By MORTON BIRGE.

It's nix on the moving picture house for the richest burg on earth.
The Brookline kid must come in to town and absorb two dollars' worth.
There's naught for the rich man's boy and girl but the high-brow, deep-stuff show.
The slides and reels may do for the mob, but in Brookline they don't go.

The Selectmen spit with the pointive voice and the "movies" pictured play
Can't fill any bill for Brookline folk. Their purse isn't built that way.
The lively films, at a dime per cent, are some fun for me and you,
But Brookline goes to a two-buck show and a ten-cent house won't do.

So nix on the moving picture game for the township with the dough.
There's never a Brookline picture house to play to the "S. R. O."
The slides and reels may do for the crowd, but the rich town says: "Nay, nay."
And no song-sheet girl nor comic film has any chance out that way.

WATSON SCORES FROTHINGHAM

Open charges that Lieutenant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham, the Lodge machine candidate for Governor, drew two salaries from the State while he was in the Legislature, were made by Congressman E. Watson at rallies held in Odd Fellows Hall, Newtonville and in the Town Hall, Brookline.

Watson perfaced his charges, which were cheered, by saying that Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham and Robert Luce had referred slightingly to him on the stump as an "expert who had been hired to find bad management and wrong-doing."

"I was not hired as an expert," Watson said, "but I did find bad management and wrong-doing. That's why the Republican candidates abuse me so. It didn't take an expert to discover wrong-doing. One item may interest Mr. Frothingham.

"In 1901 Louis A. Frothingham was a member of the House of Representatives.

"The House met almost every day from January 3, 1901, to June 20, 1901.

Paid by Park Board.

"Mr. Frothingham was paid by the State a salary for his work as Representative.

"At the same time and during many of the same days, Louis A. Frothingham was employed by the Metropolitan Park Commission and was paid by the State for services rendered, at the rate of $10 per day.

"This was the same work which Louis A. Frothingham had been doing as a regular employe of the Metropolitan Park Commission since 1898. During the legislative session of 1901, the Metropolitan Park Commission had many petitions acted upon by the Legislature, including measures to provide for expenses and for the disposition of money.

"Mr. Frothingham voted on those measures.

"Mr. Frothingham throughout the year 1901 drew two salaries from the Treasury of the Commonwealth.

Violated the Law.

"Section 11 of chapter 18 of the Revised Statutes, in force since 1840, says: 'A person shall not at the same time receive more than one salary from the treasury of the Commonwealth.'

"Section 15 provides that no person employed in any department shall receive any fee for any services during office hours and whoever violates the provisions of this section shall be disqualified for employment in any department of the State government.

"I may be a proper subject for the attacks of the Republican candidate for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor. Their abuse of me just shows their cullibre.

"I was a member of the House of Representatives in 1901 when Mr. Frothingham was there, and I was satisfied with one salary. Perhaps that puts me in the 'five dollar class instead of Mr. Frothingham. I leave that to the public to decide. If Mr. Luce wants me to climb down to his level and tell what I know about his interest in litigation about his brother's chipping interest, but let him ask me.

"If the Republican candidates had any real arguments to get rid of, they wouldn't waste their time on me."

MILLION DOLLAR GIFT TO BRIDE

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 3.—Miss Rebecca Kruttschnitt, daughter of the future president of the Harriman lines, came here from her home in Chicago and was wedded to Henry Clifford Woodhouse, a young Canadian, who was too busy to go to his fiancee.

Julius Kruttschnitt's gift to his daughter is declared to have been stocks, bonds and other securities to the total value of $1,000,000, which puts her in the "million-dollar-bride" class.

Mr. Woodhouse, a native of Montreal, came here several years ago from Klamath Falls, Ore., where he attracted the attention of Julius Kruttschnitt as a man of rare railroad ability, and was sent South in connection with the Harriman interests. He was educated in England. When the Boer war broke out he fought in a number of engagements as a member of Lord Roberts's Light Horse Brigade and later won a commission.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodhouse will sail for a tour of the Orient, a honeymoon.

ATTACKS THE BUILDING INSPECTION IN BOSTON

Ignorance as well as laxity on the part of Boston's building inspectors is advanced as the principal reason for the collapse of several buildings while under course of construction, in a letter received by the AMERICAN from the Boston Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' Union to-day.

The union contends that Mayor Fitzgerald did not go far enough in his former communication to the Finance Commission concerning the collapse of the building being put up at No. 457 Hanover street. It is further stated that not one inspector in Boston to-day really understands the construction of iron furring and metal lathing. The communication follows:

"In Mayor Fitzgerald's letter to the Finance Commission on October 14, in relation to the collapse of the building in process of erection at 457-461 Hanover street, he writes as follows:

"The broader question, however, of placing the responsibility and applying a remedy which would prevent a recurrence of such accidents in future still remains unsettled. This particular mishap may be due to the ignorance as suggested by Commissioner Arnold, to defective administration, or organization in the building department. One of the remedies that has been suggested for the prevention of such accidents is the licensing of all builders. This measure would recognize clearly that their occupation, like that of plumbers, gas fitters and engineers, involves risks, and that those who pursue it should possess certificates from some department of the government as evidence that they are qualified to do so.

"We, as metal lathers, do hereby suggests a remedy to stop all such accidents as those that occurred when the metal lathed ceiling fell in the Brighton Telephone Building and other buildings we can mention. That is, as the commissioner of the building department states, in relation to the building on Hanover street, 'Laxity on part of the inspector may be the cause.'

"We know it is not only laxity but ignorance on the part of inspectors on this class of work. There is not on the whole force of inspectors a man that really understands the construction of iron furring and metal lathing as done to-day, and it being one of the most vital in a building, most of the work being over the public's head when building is completed; we, the metal lathers' organization of Boston and vicinity, do hereby demand that there shall be an inspector over iron furring and metal lathing, also that said inspector shall be a practical man who has worked five years at said business. We have inspectors of other trades, and we believe we are entitled to representation of our craft.

"The majority of the building inspectors were appointed before the era of metal lathing and free furring. What we want and demand is a competent man who has followed our line of business for at least five years. This letter is fully endorsed by the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union, Local 72."

MRS. FITZGERALD, NOW PRINCESS OF THURN AND TAXIS

She Figured in Pullman car romance and now will pay debts of nobleman blasted by sign of Aquarius.

GIRL WILL SUE PRINCE TAXIS

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—"I still love my husband, the Prince, but if that woman has so completely stolen him away from me that he could be induced to repudiate his marriage to me and marry her, I will have to give him up.

"I am going to see him for divorce and sue her for alienation of his affections, and I am certain that I will win both cases."

This statement was made by Josephine Moffitt, who declares that she is the Princess of Thurn and Taxis. "That woman is Lida Eleanor Fitzgerald, the divorced wife of General Gerald Fitzgerald, who married the Prince at Uniontown, Pa., the other day."

Brande and Brande, Miss Moffitt's attorneys, announced that the suit for divorce and the action for damages for alienation of affections would be instituted at once.

Blames "Other Woman."

Miss Moffitt charges that the Prince was faithful and affectionate until he met the divorced wife of General Fitzgerald several years ago. About two years ago the Prince left her, and she declares that his desertion was due to the influence that Mrs. Fitzgerald had obtained over him.

The Prince of the Austrian empire and the two women who form the other points of the love-triangle have figured in picturesque escapades in the news of the day for several years past. The Prince and Miss Moffitt lived in a luxurious apartment in Park avenue for several years as man and wife.

"As long as he had it he certainly spent it," commented Attorney Weiser, as he produced a package of papers which he said were household bills totaling about $2,400, the sum spent. This filing was attorney for both the Prince and Miss Moffitt at that time and also after. Soon they were forced to give up their de luxe apartment and take humbler lodgings, from which they were subsequently ejected.

Her attorneys admit that so far as they know Miss Moffitt had no marriage license to show that she was legally wedded to the Prince under the laws of New York. She says she remembers going before a justice of the peace and afterward at dinner they shook hands across the table. She also has about five hundred letters in which the Prince addresses her as his "darling wife," and uses the word with other adjectives of endearment.

Miss Moffitt is a woman of unusual mental ability, according to her attorneys. She speaks five or six languages in addition to her native tongue and is possessed of remarkable tact. With the Prince's title and her social talent they were able to move in very select circles.

When the Prince left he went to London and she promptly followed him with a vaudeville engagement. She refused to be deserted and had herself billed all over London as the Princess of Thurn and Taxis. The Prince began proceedings to have these bills suppressed, but he was beaten in court.

The London Daily Mail said a lot of unkind things about his petty financial dealings and he sued for $500,000. This suit was dropped, and later the Austrian Embassy at Washington communicated with Miss Moffitt's attorneys and offered her $2,000 in payment of all debts contracted by the Prince while he was with her and for an absolute release of all her claims on him by her.

"I can't release my husband," she replied. "The courts have to do that."

GRAND TRUNK HAS BIG PLANS

DETROIT, Nov. 3.—President Hays of the Grand Trunk, who was here attending a meeting of directors of the company's Western subsidiaries, announced that the Grand Trunk Railway will either join the Michigan Central in the use of the proposed union depot or erect a fine splendid new structure on the present site of the old station near the water front.

These improvements, however, will not be made for some time, as the Grand Trunk was inclined to await the completion of the Michigan Central terminal.

The only change in the boards of the nine companies which have headquarters in Detroit, was the election of Howard G. Kelley as vice-president of the Grand Trunk system. He was recently promoted to the presidency of the Central Vermont Railway. F. W. Morse was elected to succeed George H. Ross on the board of directors of the Detroit & Toledo Short Line.

WIDOW TO FIGHT HOLYOKE WILL

BANGOR, Me., Nov. 3.—A contest in the California courts will be made against the will of Frank H. Holyoke, a Bangor lumberman, who died in Pasadena, Cal., on October 3. The contest will be made by his widow, who was cut off with $1,000. She claims that the will is invalid because it gives Holyoke's domicile as Pasadena, Cal., whereas in his cross-libel in a divorce suit filed in this city a few months ago his legal residence is given as Bangor.

Holyoke made half a million dollars in lumber and shipping, and some time before his death he separated from his third wife, who is now contesting the will. In February he went to Pasadena. His will left nearly $100,000 to charitable institutions in Bangor and a few small personal bequests, the residue, amounting to between $300,000 and $400,000, being divided between the thirteen-year-old twin daughters of his brother, Caleb, of Bangor. Two sons by a former marriage are left $100. Holyoke alleging lack of filial affection on their part.

GIRL IN POISON CASE WEDDED

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 3.—Prosecutor Mott has obtained a history of the career of Miss Florence Bromley, the young Philadelphia woman whose reunion with Allison Markland led to the indictment on a charge of murder following the death of his wife, by poison.

Mr. Mott learned it is said, that Miss Bromley was married September 8, 1905, to John Dewees, a farmer of Lebanon, Hunterdon county, N. J. The marriage remained secret, however, for weeks later the couple separated. At the time of separation Dewees would not release her.

The failure to get a divorce from Dewees, however, did not stop Miss Bromley from going with Markland. She met him in Philadelphia, it is said, and they went to Atlantic City, where they registered as man and wife. Then Markland left for Philadelphia, it is said, with a bottle of poison.

She did not return to her husband and five months later said she began to be known as a widow. Then she became involved with a dozen men in Trenton, Camden and Philadelphia. Two years later, it is said, she secured a decree of absolute divorce from Dewees on grounds of desertion and was married in November, 1910.

Mrs. Dewees now has her married name and resumed her maiden name.

LIVES HIGH ON HUNT FOR WORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—On the verge of Writers' camp, digging 50c an hour in order to orders for meals, drinks, flowers, autos and theatre tickets to the amount of $140.10, all of which was contracted in three days, Alfred Altwater, who says he comes from Pittsfield, Mass., was arrested for Vagrancy Monday.

In Pittsfield, young Mr. Altwater, who is a year beyond his majority, works in the grocery store owned by his uncle and aunt. There he weighs up sugar and rushes morning orders for eggs with the friendly farmers.

He came to New York a few days ago and, failing to get work, moved into the Waldorf with his suit case. He took a suite and kept a valet busy pressing his two suits of clothes and full overcoat.

When he dined there were flowers on the table and a waiter twirled a bottle of wine. One of the men who entertained him was the nephew of T. Suffern, and it took the hotel management three days to locate the multimillionaire of that name whose nephew Theo. Altwater's bill was presented to him.

The young man ignored it with an air that was far like the definition of the term. He admitted that he was without funds when finally arrested after his last auto ride. He also told his police, a house detective that last Friday, after his business was dull at the Astor, he registered there under his own name, remained a few days and left. When he went away and thought of what he did and what he might owe he was surprised at his modesty.

When he returned with a new name and a few dress suits he found no room for him. He was locked up on a charge of grand larceny.

KEY CLEW IN DR. KNABE'S DEATH

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—A key, specifically described by Dr. Hebron Knabe, is regarded as a significant clew to the mystery of her death.

Though the police had persistently unsuccessfully searched Dr. Knabe's office for her key, the administrator of her estate found it on top of her dressing table. The police declare the key must have been placed on the table since their last search. The only other persons known to have been in the apartment there since Mrs. McPherson and Miss Augusta Knabe.

Detectives have extended their inquiry along the line of an opinion supplied by a prominent paralegist, that Dr. Knabe was of a peculiarly abnormal type psychically classified, all but known the world. Swinging will be said, and force to her tendencies that might cause suicidal mania.

Miss Katherine McPherson, who was Dr. Knabe's associate, and another woman are the only ones ever had seen in her shrinking abnormal.

Why I Lost My Job

Reasons Why Thousands Like Me Cannot Satisfy Their Employers.

I believe my fate is not unlike that of thousands of other workers who daily lose their places for reasons they do not know, and probably would not believe. When their last pay envelope comes along, it is usually, "Your services no longer required." If the workers knew the reason for their unceremonious removal would probably be that their usefulness was destroyed because of some mental worry, bodily ailment or general indisposition. Defective things as we all know, are the most fruitful causes of failure in all walks of life. The battle of Waterloo was lost because of a headache. In this cold age our minds must be clear, rapid, active and free from outside influence or worry, or else we go down to failure with the throng of "floaters" who go from one place of employment to another, giving no satisfaction to others or to themselves, constantly growing older and less useful, with no ambition, no will power, and no hope.

Every man requires from every other man the best that is in him. But no man can live or get the best that is in himself until he is first free from all fruitful indispositions and worries.

That was my trouble. I was full of troubles. That's why I lost my job. My stomach in the first place was always out of order, and I was worrying about it and my mind grew cloudy and slow. I made mistakes, and grew grouchy. That was the end.

There are thousands like me, going about with "quick lunch" for dyspepsia, weak manners, and repulsive atmospheres. No employer wants such men's services.

Take my advice: A healthy stomach is half the battle, for it keeps your mind clear, and your face rosy. I have a healthy stomach now and hold a good position, and my employer is satisfied and so am I.

I started to take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets which I was told were good for the worst cases of indigestion and dyspepsia. The first two tablets made a wonderful difference in my condition.

One ingredient of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digests 3,000 grains of food. The stomach doesn't have to work at all. The Tablets do all the work, no matter how heavy your meal.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure brash, eructations, burning sensations, bloat, irritations, loss of appetite, nausea, headaches, lack of energy, loss of memory and dyspepsia and indigestion in their very worst forms.

No other little tablets in the world can do so much. You should carry them around with you wherever you go and take them regularly after meals. Then you will realize what it is to be freed from stomach torment, and have a clear mind, a quick memory, a happy disposition, comfort and rest. Get Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store for 50c a box.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

WOMAN OVER FORTY FLEES WITH BOY, 17

STERLING, Ill., Nov. 3.—Pursued by the angry father of the boy, Miss Jennie Wilson and Frank Spencer, both of Manlius, Ill., arrived here this morning and started for Chicago. The woman is forty-eight years old and the boy seventeen. John W. Spencer arrived in an automobile thirty minutes after the train departed. He boarded the next train for Chicago, where, he believes, an attempt will be made to obtain a marriage license.

IMMIGRANT SON OF OFFICER'S OLD CHUM

When Immigration Inspector J. B. Brekke was examining third class passengers from the Arabic of the White Star line in Charlestown, one of the new arrivals handed him a card containing the name of "Nels Olaf Ingeford." Thirty years ago, in Norway, I had a chum by that name. We lived in Hitterdal," said the inspector, "I wonder if you ever heard of him." "I am his son," was the reply. Nels Olaf, who was on his way to Hyde Park, was passed at once.

ELDER SINGS "FAIR HARVARD" AT DINNER

Samuel J. Elder, Yale graduate, joined in singing "Fair Harvard" at the annual dinner of the Boston City Club. It all started when they greeted Mr. Elder with Yale's "Boola, Boola," as he began to speak. When they swung into "Fair Harvard" he was too good a sport to stop singing. At the head of the table were Geoffrey B. Leby, the first president of the club; Colonel James P. Ford, another officer of the port of Boston; Colonel Robert Bell Tales, and David F. Tilley, president of the club.

SHANGHAI IN REBELS' HANDS

SHANGHAI, Nov. 3.—The revolutionists are in possession of Shanghai. The arsenal and the native city were surrendered to them without resistance this afternoon. Some of the foreign warships in the harbor landed marines to guard the foreign concessions before the imperialists surrendered.

It is expected that Wu Sung, ten miles north of Shanghai and the native forts, will fall to-night. Rebel forces are reported moving on Nanking and Ching-Kiang and it is believed that they will fall into rebel hands within forty-eight hours.

Rebels at Kiu-Kiang are said to have seized the British cruiser Sampson.

Reports were received that the province of Yun-Nan, on the southwestern frontier of China, had declared its independence.

Fifty German marines have been rushed to Tien-Tsin to reinforce the foreign guard there. The town is crowded with refugees, among them many foreigners who fled from the Capital.

Since the beginning of the fighting at Hankow it is estimated that probably 50,000 have perished either in battle or by massacres at the hands of the imperialist soldiers.

While the Manchu government promised new reforms in edicts issued to-day, the actual movement of the Young China forces in the National Assembly has received a check in its progress toward reconstruction as a result of the advices from southern provinces.

Among the reforms which will be inaugurated under the new regime are: Rescinding of the powers of Prince Pu Lun and other Manchu nobles to frame a constitution; order to cut off queues; disbandment of the Eight Banners, the Manchu military divisions; abolition of all Manchu civil pensions; compulsory adoption of Chinese surnames by Manchu families and the adoption of the western calendar for China.

At Shanghai the imperial soldiers stationed around the foreign concessions to protect foreigners mutinied to-day and went over to the revolutionists.

Shanghai is the first seaport taken by the rebels. Shanghai has a population of over 600,000 and is the chief Chinese emporium for foreign commerce. The native city is about one mile in diameter surrounded by populous suburbs. The foreign section comprises the British and French concessions and the American quarters.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

THE PIRATES OF PINHEAD ALLEY—By F. OPPER

THREE WOMEN SAVED AT FIRE

Patrolman Montague C. Pickett of Station 15 and Arthur Welch, known as an amateur lightkeeper, are being complimented in Charlestown to-day for their rescue of three women, who were almost overcome by smoke in a blazing house.

The women whose lives were saved are Mrs. Bridget Carbonne, her daughter Annie, and a Mrs. Francis Auld, all of whom live in the three-story wooden building at the corner of Main and Baldwin streets, Charlestown.

At 2 o'clock this morning workmen on the L road saw flames in the clothing shop of Mrs. Carbonne on the first floor and shouted to Welch, who sent in an alarm from box 463.

Mrs. Carbonne and her daughter Annie live on the second floor and Mrs. Frances Auld and her son, Danforth Auld, on the third floor.

Patrolmen Pickett and Montague, aided by Welch, broke down the door of the apartment. They carried Mrs. Carbonne and her daughter out and then took out Mrs. Auld.

The fire was confined to the first floor. The damage was about $1,000.

DELAY VERDICT ON TOBACCO

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Felix P. Levy, representing independent tobacco concerns, appeared at the Federal building to-day and went into conference with Judge Noyes of the United States Circuit Court. At the conclusion of the interview he called on Judge Lacombe. Mr. Levy expressed the opinion that it would probably be several days before it would be possible for the court to hand down a decision. Independent interests filed with the court additional memoranda this afternoon, which precludes all possibility for a decision earlier than next week.

OUTRIDE GALE IN LITTLE BOAT

Supposed to be drowned or blown out to sea after being out all night in a 23-foot powerboat, three Dorchester men put in at the Prospect street pier of the Dorchester Yacht Club in an exhausted condition shortly after 8 a. m. to-day. They had ridden out the gale in a little cove down the harbor.

Dr. Daniel G. White of No. 193 Neponset avenue, Patrolman George A. Borrill of the Milton sub-station at Dorchester, and Thomas Clark, a night watchman at the city yard on Codman street, made up the party.

General Bartlett Says:

Gen. Charles W. Bartlett, formerly Democratic candidate for Governor, said: "I venture to say that no attorney, no matter how skilful he may be, could take up the work of Mr. Frederick and familiarize himself with it in a great many years.

"Mr. Frederick has a special knowledge of the practice of the Supreme Court, which makes him of great use not only to the judges, but the counsel of both sides. It would be a pity for the county to be deprived of a public servant having Mr. Frederick's training."

John H. Casey Says:

John H. Casey, formerly connected with the Suffolk County District Attorney's office and afterward in the United States District Attorney's office, endorses Walter F. Frederick for re-election as Clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court, as follows:

Mr. Casey says:

"I have known Mr. Frederick intimately since he was clerk in the Municipal Court.

"He has always been an able, conscientious, courteous and faithful public official and is in every way qualified to discharge the duties of the office he now holds. He was deservedly elected by the people three years ago and should now be re-elected."

Louis D. Brandeis Says:

"The contest for the position of Clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court for Suffolk County presents to the voters the question whether or not an experienced and faithful official shall be dismissed from an office exercising no political influence, merely because the position is desired by a man having an opposite party nomination. Mr. Frederick, the present clerk, has worked in the courthouse for more than 16 years, rising steadily from a boy to Clerk of the Supreme Court. During his entire career his services have been of the highest order. Not the slightest complaint of him has even been heard. He possesses an unfailing courtesy and knowledge of the duties of his position such as only long experience can give."

Re-elect FREDERICK Next Tuesday

Overcoats

A man walked into our Men's Clothing Department last Saturday and said to one of our floorwalkers: "See this suit I've got on? Well, I bought it here several years ago, and although I've worn it in nearly every state in the Union—and given it mighty hard and continuous wear at that—it's a good suit yet.

"Now, I want an overcoat and I've come back to the store that sold me the suit, hoping I'll get as good a value in an overcoat."

There you have it straight from the customer's standpoint. He came back because he had gotten his money's worth out of the suit and wanted to make sure of getting as much out of an overcoat. The suit had won his confidence—there could be no doubt about the overcoat. This confidence of our customers is the dynamo that runs this business at the steadily increasing speed it has maintained ever since it started twenty-eight years ago. A confidence that has "Your money back if you want it" has its directing impulse.

PELLETIER GOES AFTER TRUSTS

Asked if they had brought with them the books of the committee, especially those recording the financial contributions, Mr. Grosvenor replied that the District Attorney could have any books of the organization he wished to inspect by merely asking for them.

"If Mr. Pelletier will make known to us what books he wants," said Secretary Grosvenor, "they will be brought over at once."

McDonald is Summoned.

While the Republican committeemen were waiting in the anteroom Chairman John F. McDonald of the Democratic State Committee arrived. He also had been requested by Mr. Pelletier to come, and Chairman McDonald brought along a book and a typewritten statement showing nearly all the list of contributors to the Democratic committee campaign funds for this year, but all the expenditures, even to those for stamps. Mr. McDonald said he could, if requested, produce vouchers for every item of receipts and expenditures by the committee right up to headquarters.

Messrs. Gallagher, Groves and Curtin were admitted to District Attorney Pelletier's private office at 11 o'clock and Gallagher and Groves did not come out until 11:30. Secretary Curtin remained to be still further questioned.

Both Treasurer Gallagher and Secretary Groves looked serious when they emerged. They had nothing to say except to reiterate the statement that the District Attorney could have any of the committee's books he wished by asking for them. They would not admit he had asked them to produce the books or statement of contribution receipts, but they would not deny that they were on their way to get them.

Investigation to Be Rigid.

The District Attorney has started a rigid investigation to determine whether the Republican State Committee and some of its largest contributors have violated the corrupt practices act, as charged by Governor Foss in his sweeping statement to Mr. Pelletier.

Hastily called conferences were also held by officials of the United Shoe Machinery Company, the American Woolen Company and other persons and corporations accused by Governor Foss of being in readiness to defeat him that they wilfully violated the law.

The District Attorney made the following statement:

"I have received a letter from Governor Foss calling my attention to certain alleged violations of Chapter 483 of the Acts of 1908, entitled, 'An act to prohibit the making of political contributions by business corporations,' also calling my attention to alleged violations of Chapter 581 of the Laws of 1907, entitled, 'An act to prohibit the publication of unsigned political advertisements and the making by certain corporations of political contributions.'

"I have asked the treasurers of the Republican and Democratic State Committees to submit their books, and have also started an investigation along certain other lines regarding newspaper advertisements.

PRESCRIPTION FOR BACKACHE

One of the Best Known in Medical Profession for Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

"Half ounce fluid extract Buchu; half ounce Murex compound; six ounces good pure gin. Shake the bottle well each time and use in doses of one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bedtime." These ingredients can be mixed or supplied by any druggist.

Backache, frequent or highly colored urination and rheumatic pains are symptoms of kidney and bladder disorders that usually terminate in dreaded Bright's disease or diabetes. The above prescription is known to give quick and permanent results.

HOW THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY ACTS UPON TRUST CAMPAIGN ADS

I have received a letter from Governor Foss calling my attention to certain alleged violations of Chapter 483 of the Acts of 1908, entitled, "An act to prohibit the making of political contributions by business corporations," also calling my attention to alleged violations of Chapter 581 of the Laws of 1907, entitled, "An act to prohibit the publication of unsigned political advertisements and the making by certain corporations of political contributions."

I have asked the treasurers of the Republican and Democratic State Committees to submit their books, and have also started an investigation along certain other lines regarding newspaper advertisements. — District Attorney's statement on campaign advertisements.

BREAKS BACK BY FALL FROM ROOF

While at work on the roof of a new building at No. 280 Tappan street, Brookline, to-day, Albert H. Cusick, thirty-two, single, of No. 17 Norfolk street, Roxbury, lost his balance and fell thirty-five feet. He struck upon the stone pavement. Some of his fellow-workmen lifted him into an automobile, which rushed him to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where he was found to have sustained a fractured spine. His condition is critical.

$750,000 BLAZE AT LONDON, ONTARIO

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 3.—Fire originating in the store of J. P. Capan & Co. to-day caused a loss of at least $750,000 and deprived 500 persons of employment. Firemen were in danger from falling walls, but none was seriously injured. The fire at one time threatened the entire business section of the city. The plant of the Purdon Hardware Company was destroyed.

TURKS CAPTURE OUTER FORTS

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—The report that all of the outer forts at Tripoli are in the hands of the Turks is confirmed in well-informed circles here. The Italians hold the forts within the city proper.

MALTA, Nov. 3.—With the army of 75,000 Turks and Arabs, which is besieging Tripoli on the land side, concentrated in a sheltered oasis east of Messa, and the Italian forces widely are defending the city increased to 20,000 by reinforcements, a decisive engagement is momentarily expected.

A concerted assault of the entire attacking army has been awaited since Thursday morning, but for some reason the Turkish and Arab leaders postponed their advance. The Italians have moved all their available artillery to the outlying defenses, and now been shipped into the suburbs at the very edge of the city, while half of the Italian army is slightly kept under arms in anticipation of an attack under cover of darkness.

Reports received here through the agency of refugees and from passengers on steamships state that the Turks and Arabs besieging the city are daily gaining confidence in consequence of their victories over the Italian detachments which were sent out to penetrate the interior, but which were driven back into the city with heavy losses of life.

FAT MEN PLAN NATIONAL CLUB

Do you weigh 190 pounds? No? Then you don't get in.

Here's a new trust of the most gigantic kind. It's a beef trust pure and simple, but it is to be called the United States Fat Men's club. The only requirement for membership is being a good fellow and weighing 190 pounds. But you must tip the scales at that figure—no 189-ers or lesser ups going to get into this organization. No, sir; they are going to have none there—regulation hay trains to move the pounds there is no doubt—high every member before he is admitted to this club.

The meeting takes place Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the Revere House, which will be the headquarters of the new club. There will be food—fat men's food—for members and other refreshments. The committee of organization is headed by John K. Wells, who tips the scales at 205. George M. Wragg, John M. Keyes, E. F. Pulsted, Attorney Joseph S. Spencer and Attorney Horatio M. Allen, and W. D. Quimby of Boston.

HUNT WATER AS BUILDINGS BURN

Unable to obtain water, firemen were powerless to fight flames that spread through the home, shed and stable of Horace U. Newcomb in South Hingham and the buildings were destroyed.

Mr. Newcomb, his wife and four young children, who live in a cottage house on Cross street in and out-of-the-way section of the town, were aroused by the fire, which was burning in the house, barn and shed. They dressed hurriedly and escaped.

An alarm was sounded and the fire department had a three-mile run. The firemen could not obtain water for an hour and by that time the buildings were in ruins.

A horse, several wagons, sets of harnesses, hay and grain and farm tools were destroyed. The cause of the fire was not established.

REPUBLICAN MACHINE METHODS FOSS TARGET

The opposition discusses its own needs and the terms upon which it will consent to allow the workingmen of Massachusetts to work to support their families. The Republican machine has outraged decency, defied all progress toward the elimination of corporations from politics, and has not only violated all existing laws against corrupt practices, but has, by its conduct, defined the offences which a further criminal statute without loopholes should be framed to punish. And so the true character of the present Republican control is disclosed. Its policy is to agitate and disturb business generally, by methods that lead to no public good, and to shelter, by tariff discrimination, the interests that paid large dividends throughout the panic and prosper continually at the expense of other industries.—Governor Foss in Fitchburg speech

A Posner-Stein-Bloch $20 model.

When a Boston merchant tells you that his store is growing faster than any other store in the city that is selling the same line of goods, you can rest assured there is some sound reason for the growth.

A Bostonian will investigate—he will compare—he will listen respectfully to an intelligent salesman. But a true Bostonian does his own deciding, and if he is in doubt, he puts it squarely up to the firm to guarantee the goods.

And that is the reason why I am proud to operate a store in Boston—proud of the success of my organization—proud of Posner's—from the collar department to the clothing department—and of every department in between

My instructions to every salesman in the Posner store have always been the same: "Sell every customer only the goods that he wishes to buy, and above everything else, do not attempt to sell anybody something unless they care to make the purchase."

I engage the services of bright young salesmen—keenly alive to the needs of the trade—competent to help in the selection of goods—but with brains enough to leave the actual buying and paying for goods to the intellect of the customer

There are no clashes in the Posner methods—no misunderstandings—and any man in Boston may feel perfectly at ease in coming into my store on a tour of investigation and be sure that his presence alone is sufficient to warrant polite and courteous treatment whether he buys something or merely looks at some goods.

I can sell you a linen collar for 10 cents that is the equal of any 15 cent collar on earth. I can sell you a shirt for $1.15 equal to any $1.50 shirt in Boston. I sell regular $1.00 ties for 50 cents. I sell genuine Russian Kassan gloves for $1.45 that cannot be touched by any dealer in this city for less than $2.00. The same value giving is true in stockings, underwear, handkerchiefs, garters, suspenders, pajamas, bath robes, collar buttons, umbrellas, hats, caps, raincoats—or anything that a well-conducted men's store should carry.

And now a final word—about clothing. This is my newest department—It means more to my reputation than any other department—and I am going to tell you about it, briefly.

I established this new department after many years of careful study of clothing conditions in this city. I went into the clothing business with well defined ideas of value and since I inaugurated my clothing department, last Spring, I have opened the eyes of the men of Boston to something better in style—more classy in assortment—and at a saving in price that carries out the regular Posner ideas of "more value in everything for less money than anywhere."

In my clothing department, you will find at the head of the list the world's standard of tailored clothes for men—the Stein-Bloch models—represented in their entirety. I am Stein-Bloch's exclusive agent in Boston.

The Posner-Stein-Bloch price range is $18 to $50 for suits or overcoats. Dress suits and Tuxedos up to $60—and no tailor in the world can equal these goods for fit, snap, service or style.

I also have another line of good suits and overcoats that sell for $15, offering any man or young man as wide a range in colors, styles and fabrics as the prevailing fashions permit.

So, if you feel as though your money entitles you to the best that there is in Boston—in the greatest variety of styles—and at a price that is in keeping with a strictly cash system of buying and selling on an enormous scale, I most cordially invite you to do your next shopping in my lines of merchandise —from collars to clothing—at started out to make flour.

And the millions of housewives watched them.

In the course of years one miller's flour came to far outsell the rest.

The demand grew and grew, until that miller's flour fed 24,000,000 folks daily.

The winning flour is Gold Medal.

And it won by comparisons.

Millions of women, watching millions of bakings, came to demand that flour.

The reason lies here:

We built our own test kitchen.

Day after day, year after year, we learned the requirements of perfect flour. We learned the wheat that makes it.

Now we grind that wheat through 20 sets of rolls. Now we sift it through 10 silk cloths.

And the flour that results has won millions and millions to

Getting anything you want on credit at the big department or other stores by the use of the Peoples Credit Co.'s Order Check, which is now being used by over 50,000 people, who desire private and dignified credit, and who do not wish to pay the excessive charges of the old style credit houses with their objectionable publicity and inferior poor style stock.

How to Get Credit at the Big Stores

AND PAY $1.00 A WEEK

One of the many pleasing features of our modern credit system is this—You are not obliged to have the label of a credit clothing house sewed into or stamped upon your clothing when you use our Order Check to obtain credit accommodation. You get your order from us on the Big Department or Specialty Stores, and it is the label of these well-known, reputable, high-class cash stores that will be on your clothing. Also, always remember this—that you pay only the regular advertised cash bargain prices of these stores—just the same as their cash customers pay, and you do not present our order check in payment until after you have made your purchase.

We sell these makes of clothing on credit for the manufacturers and are bound by agreement not to charge one cent more for any suit or overcoat than is charged by the cash clothing stores. If a man wishes one of the advertised reputable brands of suits or overcoats it is no longer necessary for him to pay cash for it—we will sell it to him on credit at the regular cash price. Below are a few of the high class clothing brands sold by us on credit

DEFINITION OF PERFECT WIFE

A husband and wife who realize they are born to wings and not angels are bound to have their little ups and downs as of temper. Married life is not all plain sailing and there must be times now and then when both parties fail to agree.

A perfect wife must be able practically to acquit herself of the domestic duties of the home. She must be a good cook and know how to keep her house neat, tidy and shipshape. That makes a husband feel proud of being married.

A wife who tries to be the counselor, friend and companion of her husband in all his affairs, the best he can do, of course all his cares

THE skipper was a man who had a good opinion of himself and his motions. He had sailed through typhoons, mutiny and other perils of the deep, but he came a cropper when For one of his voyages he had shipped a boatswain's mate who was something of a reputation.

One day the skipper ordered him aloft to overhaul a sail on the royal yard.

"Taint safe, cap'n!" protested the boatswain's mate; "the foot-ropes has got to be fixed first."

"Do as I tell you!" thundered the captain. "The foot-ropes are all right. I know they are."

The man went up.

Five minutes later he came tumbling down through the rigging from the top of the mast a distance of over one hundred feet.

With a bang he landed on the belly of the skipper and bounded into one of the unsavoyed boats.

The sailors, thinking him dead, crowded all him in a circle.

To their amazement he sat up.

His eyes wandered vacantly about until they rested on the leathery face of the skipper, when they lighted up with fiendish glee.

"Cap'n," he said, slowly; "you was mistaken about them foot-ropes."

Mirandy on Our Friends, the Enemy

Illustrated by E. W. Kemble

By Dorothy Dix

(Reproduced, by Permission, from the November Number of "Good Housekeeping" Magazine)

"DIS mawnin'," said Mirandy, "dis I was a-fetchin' you' clothes home, I met up wid Sis Marthy, an' I stopped to pass de time of day wid her.

"'Well, Sis Marthy,' I said, 'how does yo' symptoms seem to segnerize?'

"'Oh, Sis Mirandy,' spons she, a lustin' into tears, 'I'se a travelin' through de low ground of trouble an' tribulation.'

"'How so?' I axes.

"'Oh, Sis Mirandy,' she moans, 'I ain't got no friends. Dere ain't nobody dat loves me.'

"'Well, I axes, 'you ain't run out of folks dat hates you, is you?'

"'Nawm,' she spons, wid a sob.

"'Rho, den,' I says, 'you ain't got nuthin' to worry ever, for let me tell you—one real hefty, able-bodied enemy will do you mo' good dan fifty friends.

"'What do friends do for you? Dey come an' eat up our victles, an' borry our new flower bonnets, an' a little change dat dey forgits to pay back, but our enemies don't got de privilege of comin' an' settlin' down on us, so dey's money in our pocket.

Popularity Unprofitable

"'Did you ever hear of anybody dat ev'body like dat ever had a dollar? Popularity is de fust mile post on de road to de poh'house. You see one of dese heah men what's hail-fellow-well-met, an' dat ev'body has got a good word for, an' slaps on de back, an' calls by his fust name, an' when he dies de preacher has to pass de hat around to git enough money to bury him.

"'I 'spec's dat friends is about de mos' expensive luxury dat anybody can indulge in, an' dat's why de folks dat get rich don't have none. You don't hear of nobody what's hangin' on de neck of dat Mr. Rockingfeller, or dat loves Mr. Carnegie lak a brother, does you?

"'But enemies is cheap. You don't have to buy no drinks for 'em, nor waste no time entertainin' 'em, nor set up wid 'em when dey is sick. All dat dey expect for you is des to give 'em de cold shoulder an' a discontemptuous look when you passes 'em by.

"'We talks a lot of foolishness about the power of love, but it's de power of hate dat makes us git up an' do things. As long as we are in de bosom of our do more for hate dan we will for love, an' our enemies dat help us, an' de way I ketch a good husband was by lettin' de gals was a hootowlin' bit after him, long wid spite.

"'You know dat when Ike was a young man he shol'y was a buck nigger, an' all de gals was a-hootowlin' bit after him, an' tryin' to tole him in wid taggles' food an' chicken fixins an' sich lak, but he kept his own counsels, an' he flew de coop an' was dat foxy dat none of 'em couldn't lay deir hands on him.

"'Well, when I come along, I didn't waste no time over de cookin' stove, I put my eye around an' I se dat dere was a feller named Sim dat de very looks of died Ike lak a red rag does a mad bull, so I jest passed over like Ike I didn't see him, an' begun makin' sheep's eyes at Sim, an' dat done de trick for Ike. He was jest obliged to take Sam's gal away from him or he busted de traces doin' it, and by de time he done cut out Sam, he done led me to de altar.

"'But's what makes me say what I do, Sis Marthy. Don't you worry none about not havin' no friends as long as you've got plenty of enemies. Our best friends is our enemies, for dey are de ones dat reps us up an' bustles.'

"Nobody loves me."

"When Ike was a young man he shol'y was a buck nigger."

Somewhat Different

"'But when Sis Marletta, what she an me has hated each odder lak pison since we had dat run-in togedder at de church fair, he gwine to drap in an' pay me a call, I sweeps under de beds an' dusts behind de pictures, an' puts out fresh tidies on de chairs, an' I has some cake an' wine settin' around handy lak I ain't used to eatin' nothin' else, for I ain't gwine to have dat long-tongued sarpint a-gwine around tellin' dat ole Mirandy is a shiftless housekeeper dat lakly starves her family, an' is dat stingy dat she begrudges company a bite to eat.

"'An' what makes me wuk my fingers to de bone a-takin' in washin' to buy me a three-cornered hat, an' one of dem hoop scarem skirts? Is it fur de sake of Sis Becky, what's my friend, an' dat I'll look good to fo any kind of old dude? Nawm. It's for Sis Luelen, what I can't abide, dat I does all of dat extra wuk, so dat I can flaunt myself down de church in of a Sunday mawnin,' a rattlin' as I walk, an' a shakin' my silk petticoats in front of her ivory face, so dat she is just filled wid envy dat she can't bear what de preacher says.

"'Yessum, Sis Marthy,' I goes on, 'we'll git our enemies dat helps us, an' de way I ketch a good husband was by lettin' de gals

Fashion's Decrees

A Paris lady left her to go to the city, she was weeping bitterly.

"Oh, what shall I do?" she sobbed. "Poor little Fido is ill, and the vet. says it's serious. So, what will become of me if anything happens to my precious little Pomeranian Fido?"

He comforted her, then ran to catch his train. But at 6 p. m. he hastened home to comfort her again.

But instead of tears, his wife met him cheerfully, singing a glad song. And she talked of many things, but not of Fido.

"Ah—er," he said at last—"what about Fido? How is he?"

"Fido? Oh, that little brute! You see, dear, Mrs. De Jones called this afternoon and told me that Pomeranians are not fashionable now. Everybody's gone on Pekinese spaniels. So I dried my eyes and kicked Fido out."

HE said he was a sailor. He even offered to swear it. But when the good lady from whom he sought a meal questioned him closely on matters marine, he seemed so much at sea that she doubted strongly whether he had ever really been there.

"So you say," retorted Mrs. Sparehought, "but you certainly don't act like a sailor. You don't make use of any nautical expressions, for instance."

"Mighty what?" asked the beggar.

"Nautical expressions, I said. 'Shiver my timbers,' and so on."

"Bless you, mum, I don't say none o' them things," replied the man disdainfully. "It's 'shiver my gas bags,' or 'propeller,' with me. I'm an airship sailor mum, I am."

HIS voice was almost hard. It required an effort that made for hardness to hold himself back from going over to the woman collapsed suddenly in the deep basket chair, from taking her in his arms and asking her for the right to comfort—and protect her.

Pity Stung Her

She turned a tear-drenched face suddenly to him. In that moment her beauty had disappeared and he knew then that his love for her, the love that he no longer attempted to dissemble in his own heart, had its root in something deeper, something more indestructible, than beauty.

"Everything has happened," she said. "All my world has fallen about my ears!"

"Is there anything in the world that I can do to help you?" he asked. "What does it mean? Has it anything to do with"—

The pity in his tone stung her. She turned on him with a flash of semibysterical passion.

"It means that you are not the only spy in the world," she cried. She flung prudence to the winds utterly, something in his look seeming to fan the flames of her passion. "Another spy has come out from England to bother us down—this woman!"

Her eyes raked him with a sudden fierce suspicion.

"Are you in collusion—is that the explanation of this visitor dropped from the clouds? You and this Clemency Westgarth—are you acting in collusion?"

Her sentence failed off inconclusively. She did not for a moment believe her own accusation. Her woman's instinct told her beyond all shade of doubt that it was a personal motive—a woman's motive—that had driven Clemency Westgarth across the sea to Africa.

And it told her something more, though it might have been possible to win this man to her side, to make him her friend, it would not be possible to win this other woman's mercy or forgiveness. What Clemency Westgarth had come to Africa to find out—she would find out.

Baring made no attempt to defend himself. He neither acknowledged nor denied the accusation. Dung at him with what was almost vulgar vituperation by this overwrought woman. He looked at her with a quick interest and answered her as though her question was the most commonplace one in the world.

"Clemency Westgarth—was that Miss Westgarth? Good gracious, what has brought her to Nokyoro?" There was no question as to the genuineness of the surprise in his voice. "I assure you I know nothing of her—more than I told you the other night. But why on earth should she come to spy on you? Surely you have nothing to fear from her?"

A Pretence of Ignorance

His voice was low and restrained, the emphasis on his last word unmistakable. Kitty twisted in her chair and looked up at him.

"Do you expect me to believe this pretense of ignorance?" she asked bitterly. "Come, surely your days of spying have not been so fruitless? You, above all men, must know what I have to fear."

For a moment Baring hesitated before the directness of her attack. Then:

"Of course I am aware of one fact," he said, "though I don't know how far you share my knowledge." He paused, glanced at her and read the affirmation in her eyes. "Your husband, whoever he is, is not the man who called himself John Saxe!"

The words were out now. For the first time she heard the truth she dreaded stated by a stranger's lips, and the sound of them seemed to clear the mists of hysterical passion from her mind, to give her new strength, new self-control.

"Yes." Her voice was scarcely louder than a whisper. "You know that—from the very first night you have known that, haven't you? But now don't you understand why I am afraid of this woman—why, if she meets him, I shall be ruined?"

Her voice had risen slightly on its ill-fated note that was hushed instantly at the sight of dawning comprehension that stole into Laurence Baring's eyes.

The man gave a quick exclamation.

"Great heavens—yes, I think I see it now," he said. "He is John Martindale."

He knew nothing whatever of Miss Westgarth's association with the man whose name was only a dimly remembered memory to him. But it did not require any acute power of imagination to link them up.

Into Baring's mind flashed the remembrance of the story he had listened to languidly enough when it had been told to him by an enthusiastic Baptist deaconess at the mission station at Omdats. The young woman had waxed very eloquent over her tale of the Anglican clergyman, a volunteer for the mission field, who had traveled out with Mrs. Martindale from England, and who had died suddenly of fever while proceeding up-country with her party.

All at once everything seemed clear to Baring. This man who called himself John Saxe was in reality John Martindale, this English missionary, the idea was fantastic to a degree, yet it explained at once a hundred mannerisms that Baring had noted and wondered at, the mannerisms of the Oxford trained ecclesiastic.

He looked at Kitty sternly.

"This man whose name is Martindale," he said again, "what is to you? And where is John Saxe?"

The question was brutally put, and had a blunt directness that the man would not have dreamed of using in any other place, but the habit of the West Coast, where brutality is apt to drop its disguise and go unclothed had descended upon him.

"John Saxe Is Dead!"

"John Saxe is dead!"

Kitty's eyes met Baring's with something akin to defiance in their clear depths. She knew what he thought. She knew what he must be brought to think. For a moment there was absolute silence in the room, the heavy, tangible African silence that seems to hold nothing of peace, but rather something of a sullen menace. For Kitty, the sense of immediate danger had died. Just for that silent minute her dominant feeling was of one who stands on trial, who waits for the verdict of life or death.

She found her voice with difficulty, and it had a mechanical tone. When she spoke, she spoke as one who repeats an often rehearsed story.

"You must not for a moment think I sought his death," she said. "Of course, it is not possible that you could think such things! It was an accident. It was a case of his life or mine, and John Martindale chose mine. Do you know anything of the habits of the man you came out to Africa to find? He was a drunkard, and that night he had gone mad with drink. He tried to murder me—first cut my throat and then to stab me. He—he—saved my life at the risk of his own."

Her lips had warned to life again. In quick, breathless sentences she sketched to the listening man the scene that had been enacted in the camp pitched in the clearing of the forest. Before Baring's eyes, as he stood listening silently, grew up a distinct picture—the dim interior of the tent, the drunkard madman, so awful in his quietness, the struggling men. And then, the darkness that had followed the overturning of the lamp and the grim, breathless game of blind man's bluff with death on Hoodman Blind.

"Of course, you see that he could have done nothing else—that it was a life or a drunken madman or my life," she said quickly.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

IRREGULAR TONE IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—International buying of Canadian Pacific, with a consequent advance in that stock of 1¼ in the New York list, was the centre of bull interest at the opening of the stock market to-day. The tone was irregular, the market missing the sustaining force from the urgent covering of shorts that has been an important influence in trading for the past few days.

Prices of the leaders at the opening generally showed concessions. United States Steel common lost ¼ in the first quotations, while the preferred was unchanged. Amalgamated Copper was up ⅛, but American Smelting receded ½.

Southern Railway was up ¼ while Union Pacific showed a loss of the same amount. Reading scored a gain of ⅝, an upturn of the same amount being made in Erie preferred. Erie common was up ⅛.

Large blocks of Steel common and American Smelter were thrown upon the market. Atchison, Pennsylvania and New York Central also sustained losses on sharp selling.

The Curb opened quiet, but steady. American Tobacco being 2 points lower in the opening bids. Standard Oil was unchanged.

An advance in railways in London had a confident appearance, although the price changes were in fractions. Canadian Pacific was bought in large quantities.

QUINCY WOMAN HURT IN WRECK

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 3.—Eighteen people were injured when a Seaboard Air Line passenger train from New York to Jacksonville was derailed at Merry Oaks, twenty miles south of the city. The injured, most of whom were only slightly hurt, included Miss N. Doyle of Quincy, Mass.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

The technical condition of the market has not been weakened by the advance as much as one would naturally expect, for the professional traders have been fighting the rise. They entered freely on the way up, and have now begun to put out more short contracts, believing that the public will not follow the rise.

Traders are sustained in their views by the action of several persons who are in a position to know in advance what is done at Washington. Some of these persons are selling stocks, and one interest in particular has sold Steel on the theory that criminal action begun under the Sherman anti-trust law will shock the market. Some also expect help for the bear party to come from the testimony to be taken by the Stanley Investigating Committee when it assembles next week.

Although a careful examination of the situation shows a preponderance of influences favoring the stocks less reliable, it must be admitted that here and there comfort can be found for those taking the other point of view. Railroad earnings, for instance, continue large. Bank clearings are at high levels. The price of corn has about thirty-five per cent. greater than it was a year ago and the yield is largely for the loss of harvest. Wheat about eight per cent. lighter in price. Cotton is about two-thirds of last year's price, but this is counterbalanced by the tremendous size of the crop. Farmers report that there has been a heavy growth of forage as a result of the abundant rains late in the season.

It was reported that a number of large operators, long who are able to carry large lines of securities when so inclined, had increased their purchases with time money. Loans over the week-end are easily obtainable at very low terms and the disparity between dividend rates and interest rates was and still is a temptation to put money in securities rather than to leave it idle in bank vaults. The report of these time loans implies, of course, that a number of wealthy men have taken on stocks for a long pull, not for a profit of a few points. Among the people said to have accumulated lines of this sort are men who in the normal times have very large holdings but who have seen fit to get out of the market early in the Summer.

There has been a complete recovery and something more from the collapse which followed the Steel Trust suit. The financial world believes that the government will not break up the pool in the market expresses the belief that the government is powerless to do any penal harm to corporations. But the big pluugers stand ready to sell more stock, and important institutions stand ready to liquidate if the market shows any extended rise. They believe that before the war between the two great factions in politics is ended many troublesome stock market days will be seen.

American Cotton Oil has established a new low record during the passing of the dividend on the common and perhaps a reduction on the preferred is anticipated expected.

The stock, however, is getting to a level that will soon make it attractive, and one of the ways in which cotton seed should be procured for the next year's business.

While confidence is expressed in the steel trade that prices are now going higher, and that an upturn will follow the first signs of returning confidence, in some lines the quotations are still on the down grade.

An average of 10½ per cent. has been earned on Southern Pacific stock for the last five years. Net earnings could decline 45 per cent. below the five-year average and the 6 per cent. dividend would still be earned. At the present price, paying 6 per cent. the investment yields well over 5 per cent., and investors appear to take very kindly to it.

While there are conflicting reports set afloat with regard to Reading, exceptionally well-informed sources declare positively that Morgan and Penn railroad interests are accumulating the stock. A good deal of the buying is being done with stop-loss order protection, although there is promise of support on the decline.

A telegram from the superintendent of the Mackenzie-Mann gold mine states that tunnel No. 5 is now 18 eighty-five feet from the ore zone and a small vein cut. It is expected to cut vein No. 2 within another hundred feet. Not enough could be mined to make it worth while.

WIFE MODEL GETS DIVORCE FROM ARTIST

Judge Hardy, granted a divorce to Annie M. Yerex, wife of David F. Yerex, an artist, after hearing her story. She said she used to pose for her husband.

"When I used to get tired posing in one position for my husband he would beat me to have me pose longer," declared Mrs. Yerex. "We separated on June 12 of this year. He told me that he had another woman whom he loved, and could not love me any longer." Judge Hardy awarded the woman custody of the two children and $15 a week alimony.

Don't Stop with the Head of the Ticket—Fill the State House with Democrats Who Will Back Up the Governor

The work of chastising and chastening the Republican machine in this State will not be completely and thoroughly done unless the voters wipe out the entire Republican ticket from top to bottom.

The work of purification was left uncompleted last year because the voters, while defeating Governor Draper, allowed Mr. Frothingham, who is machine made even to the finishing process, to slip in by a small margin.

The independent citizens, who will determine this election, will find it unusually easy to exercise their independence with respect to the whole Democratic ticket this year, for that ticket is unusually good in all its candidates.

David I. Walsh of Clinton, the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, is worthy of the suffrages of the independent voters.

He has risen from the ranks to a position of leadership in the central part of our State. He is a successful and capable lawyer. He is known by every one in his community, and is respected by all who know him and admired by the members of his own party.

If any one is doubtful of his fitness for the office of Lieutenant-Governor, let him attend some of the public meetings which Mr. Walsh is scheduled to address during the few remaining nights of the campaign. If Mr. Walsh does not look and talk and act the part of a solid, capable man, do not vote for him. But, if after they have seen him and heard him, every one votes for him who is compelled to admit his display of ability and character, then he will surely be elected.

Mr. Walsh subscribes to every tenet of the last Democratic platform, and those who believe in those principles may rely upon him to promote them to the best of his ability.

In public life Robert Luce, Mr. Walsh's Republican opponent, is a fallen man. Once an attractive independent and a progressive in Republican politics, he has now bowed his neck to the yoke of a machine and bent his knee to the despotic authority of Henry Cabot Lodge.

We feel toward that part of Mr. Luce's career, which preceded his merger with the Republican machine, very much as the American Revolutionary soldier felt towards Benedict Arnold's leg, which had been wounded at Saratoga before Arnold's treason.

Our schoolboys remember that after Arnold had deserted to the British, he was exceedingly curious to know what the American soldiers thought of him, and one day he visited the cell of an American prisoner and, disguising himself, he asked the prisoner what he would do to Arnold if he should get him in his power.

The prisoner replied: "I would cut off the leg that was wounded at Saratoga and I would bury it with honor, but the rest of him I would hang without ceremony."

So we would do honor to Mr. Luce's honorable but dead past.

In Mr. Luce's candidacy, progressive citizens have an opportunity to teach two lessons. To defeat him would be a lesson to the Republican machine that the people are disgusted with its works altogether, and a lesson to aspiring public men that the ascending path does not lead away from progress and reform; that to cease being a real man and become a machine puppet is not the way to secure great public honors.

But do not forget the balance of the ticket. George W. Anderson, for Attorney-General, will, if elected, be the ablest lawyer who will have held the position in many years. Then there are Mr. Donahue, Mr. Strecker and Mr. Thorndike. To elect them all would be a thorough fumigation.

Hyde Park and Annexation

At the coming State election the citizens of Boston and Hyde Park will be called upon to decide whether they wish these now separate political entities to be united together under one government.

A wise decision upon this question involves more than the benefits flowing merely from the union of Boston and Hyde Park. The people of Boston, during recent years, have awakened to the commercial importance of being known throughout the world as a great city.

Other Metropolitan districts learned that peculiar fact, which affects business, some time ago. Therefore, New York, Chicago, St. Louis and all the cities of the country which have thickly settled outlying suburban districts, have joined with these districts in making one government and saving the costly duplication of municipal service and administration.

It is perhaps strange, but it is still a fact, that there is a great commercial and industrial advantage to be gained by acquiring a reputation, in the world outside, of being a great city. The representatives of our business enterprises can approach the merchants of other places to sell their goods with more prestige if they come from a city known to have a million people, than if they come from a city with but half a million.

The merchants of a small town accept it as natural that the business enterprise of a great city should claim to be more up-to-date and to have more salable goods than a smaller city.

The business men of Boston have been aroused to appreciate this peculiarity of business psychology and the Boston Chamber of Commerce and other leading business institutions have been working hard to bring about the union of all the metropolitan suburbs with Boston, that we may take our rank as one of the largest cities on the continent.

If Boston and Hyde Park both vote for annexation, it will be the first step in the right direction and will show the way to others.

President Murlin of Boston University Has Some Mighty Interesting Things to Say in the Sunday AMERICAN. It Will Pay Not to Miss Them

A man has just been added to the thinking forces of this community whose living here will prove a decided acquisition.

Boston has always been rich in her possession of men and women with bright, cultivated minds, who, as leaders in various schools of thought, have kept actively moving the stream of intellectual animation. And there is always room and a welcome for one other if he only have a striking message to give for the common good.

Dr. Lemuel H. Murlin, recently installed in the presidency of Boston University, is the latest of our leaders of thought. Already he has given full evidence that in him Boston University has an asset of great value.

The people of Boston should know this man; the wider their knowledge of him, the deeper will be their admiration.

For the great multitude no better channel for obtaining this knowledge can be found than that which is bounded by the columns of a newspaper of such vast circulation as the Sunday AMERICAN.

The man who speaks there—and none is permitted to do so who has not something of value to say—has an audience to address greater than the mightiest of our Union armies during the Civil War.

To this great legion of careful readers President Murlin will speak through the megaphone of next Sunday's AMERICAN. Educators, college men, high school students, every boy and girl who is now facing the future, all who are interested in human knowledge, will find President Murlin's written words worthy of most attentive reading.

He treats of topics which touch us to-day at every move. And he clothes his thoughts in language so simple and direct that he captures his reader at the outset and holds him to the close.

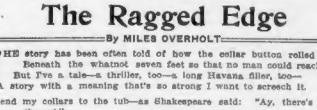
The Sunday AMERICAN will be, as usual, filled with strong and vital features. By no means the least of them will be the exposition of his views written by the new head of Boston University.

Look for it in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

The Ragged Edge

By MILES OVERHOLT

THE story has been often told of how the collar button rolled
Beneath the whatnot seven feet so that no man could reach it.
But I've a tale—a thriller, too—a long Havana filler, too—
A story with a meaning that's so strong I want to screech it.
I send my collars to the tub—as Shakespeare said: "Ay, there's the rub"—
And fondly hope I'll get 'em back ere old age shows my failings;



And when they come, ah, fellow men, they're no more white, they're yellow, men;
Besides, the edges, razor sharp, stand up like iron palings.
I'd like to see the weird machine that strives to make a collar clean
By crushing it to smithereens and filing off the edges;
I'd like to see the maniacs who chop the collars with an ax,
And beat 'em into carpet tacks with heavy iron sledges.
There are some billion men like me from Paris west to Kankakee
Who have a similar complaint and, feeling sore, decry it;

While clothes demolishers are few. (They must employ a coward's crew.)
Why stand ye idle all the day? Let's rise and start a riot.
Let's move upon the washermen, and one by one we'll squash 'em, then,
And as they groan themselves to death, perhaps at last they'll rue it;
And just before they pass away; before we give 'em time to pray,
We'll make 'em bare their secret souls and tell us how they do it.

What Will Andrew Carnegie Say Now?

When Mr. Carnegie the other day said "The American Newspaper is the greatest and cheapest thing in the world," he had not seen the new American Sunday Monthly Magazine Supplement. Mr Carnegie will find this newest triumph of progressive journalism when he sees next Sunday's AMERICAN. He will be astonished to see this new once-a-month special magazine section equal to any of the 10-cent and 15-cent weekly or monthly periodicals—it is, indeed, printed on the same paper and the same presses as the best magazines; and the foremost magazine writers and artists have been engaged to contribute to its columns. This new American Sunday Monthly Magazine is now added to all the other regular supplements of the Sunday AMERICAN on the first Sunday of each month. You will find it in next Sunday's AMERICAN, with its 28 pages of brilliant features, its wide variety of fiction and thoughtful articles, all splendidly illustrated, with its exquisitely printed colored cover, firmly bound and wire stitched, the usual weekly periodical size, 10 by 14 inches. As the edition is limited order your Sunday AMERICAN to-day.
